STAFFING FIRMS

Industry Challenge

The staffing business is changing. The client demands keep increasing. New technologies are charging into the market and your customers expect you to be using them. Meanwhile, your business has been all about filling job reqs. Little time exists to actually focus on improving how work can be done to benefit your recruiters, your candidates and your customers. Solution providers are calling you every day. They all have a silver bullet. You know that can't be true but how do you discern? And when you do decide to adopt innovation, how do you do it so your organization can actually embrace the change?

Pain Points

New digital staffing companies are trying to disrupt your world

Your candidate database is large but probably way out of date

Your applicant tracking system is not able to integrate with social recruiting tools

Solution providers are overwhelming you with all the buzzword new technologies

All the vendors sound the same; how do you decide who can really help?

How Talent Tech Labs can help

Talent Tech Labs was originally conceived inside of a staffing company, so we know the very challenges that confront you. We know that technology can become an enabler but we also understand how difficult it is for agencies to manage change. Talent Tech Labs' deep knowledge of the solutions that can be additive to staffing companies is second to none. We'll reduce the noise of the solution providers who all claim to have the silver bullet.

We deliver our research and completely unbiased insights to help you quickly assess those tools that can make your recruiters more efficient. We also help you understand the competitive landscape of recruitment in the future as more digital solutions come on the market. We know your sensitivity to cost and we understand how the right solutions can drive better outcomes for your recruiters. And by using the right technologies we can help you differentiate yourself from your competitors so you can continue to attract the best people to your team and deliver the best service to your customers.

Contact Talent Tech Labs to learn how we can resolve the pain points specific to your staffing firm and elevate your strategy.

TALENT TECH LABS

Is on a mission to elevate the state of the art in recruitment technology. Discover more through our social platforms below.